“Love as Philosophical Basis for Dialogue and Cooperation among Cultures”

Katılımcının Bildiri Özeti:
In the time of “clashes of civilizations” caused partially by globalizing the values of the most developed countries, there rises a question on the role of philosophy and philosophical wisdom in architechturing Global Peace, in preventing wars, solution of conflicts, maintaining dialogous and cooperative environment. Philosophy, philosophical knowledge, philosophical wisdom become as a main and powerful intellectual base for establishing and development of dialogue and cooperation among different cultures and civilizations.

Principle of Love of self, Love of others, Love of God is a main philosophical principle of right human action, right human behaviour. Why is it so? For Love includes respect, benevolence, compassion, devotion, altruism and other similar states of heart and mind which are creative and constructive, while opposite qualities such as hatred, enviousness, jealousy, hostility and similar states of heart and mind are destructive. The latter are destructive not only in terms of spiritual relations but mostly – that of physical one. Different deseases: blood pressure, headaches, heart sicknesses and others are directly correlated with the psychological state. Dialectical truth in unity of biological and social nature, physical and spiritual nature of a human being is manifested in all these examples.

Thus the philosophical knowledge of Love of God consequently Love of all the manifestations of God as being the most creative, the most productive, the most important for a human himself is becoming a true base for mutual understanding, mutual compassion, mutual altruism, thus a base for dialogue and cooperation not only within one’s culture but between different ones.

The paper will deal with different religious and mythological sources on Love of God, giving analysis of them, trying to connect the above idea with the most up-to-date scientific discoveries on proving the state of Love as the most important, the most necessary, the most fruitful State of Mind and Heart without which true dialogue and cooperation among different culture is impossible.
